Chris Skidmore wants your views on the proposed new Tesco store

Campaign Special

Your Prospective local Conservative MP, Chris Skidmore, has launched a major new survey asking for your views on the plans for a new Hanham Tesco.

Tesco want to develop a large new store on the former Kleeneze factory and are already moving the project forward.

Chris reports, "Five years ago Tesco were forced to withdraw their planning application because of the huge community opposition, including support from local Councillors June Bamford, Heather and John Goddard. Now five years later when the site is almost derelict they are trying again.

"However local people's genuine concerns are about the extra traffic the store will generate and the potential damage to the future of existing Hanham and Kingswood shops have not gone away."

"Tesco will argue that the store will bring more customer choice, jobs and regenerate an eyesore. I believe the local people deserve to be asked their views. I will compile the results and produce a report which I will send to the local Council and Tesco making your views clear before decisions start to be made."

Please complete the survey overleaf, return it free of charge and have your say on Tesco's plans
